SHEEPMEN REPORT LOSSES.

Light Matters at Logan-Theatrical Plain Statement.

BRIGHAM City, May 16.-The nightly

sheepmen report as many as sixty lambs loss per day. The loss is chiefly among new-sorn tambs. As the sheep have not been sheared yet, they stand the cold weather very well.

Bond Brost circus was here last Monday. They had a wet time. The usual gang of sharpers worked the tenderfeet with shell game, etc., but many of our boys had previously paid for their experience and they were not caught again. The most despicable part of the business was that some of our own town people became confederates of the swindiers.

Hicycle talk is all one hears. The city comment has passed a law compelling renters of bicycles to pay a license. There has been an ordinance regulating the riding of bicycles on the city's sidewalks, but it has virtually been a dead letter. Last Thursday the marshal arrested some of our most prominent riders for a violation of the orutiance. They should have had a hearing yesterday but it was postponed. The case promises to be an interesting one of the orutiance. They should have had a hearing yesterday but it was postponed. Queen Victoria, should come into America from the Editish dominion and give the voters of Unin advice like that. But we realized how difficult it has been to ask a plain, respectful question without some one saying that we are making an atrack upon the person of whom or to whom the question is asked. So we let the malter pass. Yesterday, however, it came to our ears that President Grson Smith had corrected her then and there, and had said that it is the duty of Utah women to study well the principles of politics and decide for themselves as to which party they shall join. We sayall honor to Orson Smith for that this patriotle words bear witness to what we have long believed: That the bishops, stake presidents, their counselors, the apostles and other officers of the church do not, as a rule, desire to dictate or sway the political actions of the church do not, as a rule, desire to dictate or sway the political actions of the church the notices of the leaders. BRIGHAM City, May 16.—The nightly frosts during the past week have seriously damaged the fruit crop of this city. Strawberries have suffered severely, and the rainers are calculating on a very small crop. Cherises have also been nipped. As yet, there is an uncertainty about the peaches, but there can be no doubt that many of them have been frozen. This region dependly largely upon the fruit crop to make business during the summer, and if the frost has airceady done its work, prospects are rather gloomy.

Sneepmen are reporting great losses among their flocks. A great many sheep are in the mountains east of this city, and the storms have covered the hills with sleet and snow. This has made it very unfavorable for the lambing scasoin, and severe losses have been the result. Some sheepmen report as many as sixty lambs lost per day. The loss is chiefly among new-ourn lambs. Sevier stake quarterly conference will be held at Monroe on the 23d and 24th inst. There will most likely be a large attendance, as the people are curious to know what the sentiment is regarding the manifesto. One thing is strikingly apparent to the casual observer, and that is the more the people study the matter over the more undecided they become. Many who rushed to the support and endorsed the document in the beginning, are not sure now that it "says what it means, and means what it says."

After running the gaunties of pinantom shadows and mythical pursuers, they paused beheath the wide apreading brancines of a silver maple, which stood like a faithful sentinel, kneeling vigit o'er their agrated sectusion. The sort perfumed breeze from the pine hims was fanning their flushed cheeks and kissing the new half-developed leaves and biossomis, in a "Hall, all hall, to the rare biossoming of spring." The pale monobeams were struggling to mume the somore shadows of the night, and were hindered only by the prants of the playful clouds, as they crossed fair Luna's burnished disc, skipping hurriedly from rocky crag to snow-capped peak, which pierced their thin drapery, and kissed the sky, far above the enchanting panorama, in the valuey beheath.

With fond caresses, sarnest, burning yows of love were communicated to her from a heart that was faint from a consuming love and a yam deaire to take her in his strong arms, keep her, love her, light for her, and if occasion demanded, die for her, inis love, his idol, his queen.

His words were sweet music to her ears, and were it possible for ner to forget the decree which bound and stacked, her, indiviality would have cuminated in the realization of Heaven's happies loy. As it was, she remained firm, unyielding, even cold. Though she was pained, she was none the less pleased and sac the possibility of the county for the possibility of the steps. They were the presence of was happy. Togother they beheld sweet love, sweet loy, sweet and the step beheld sweet love, sweet loy, sweet and her allowed the sweet love, sweet loy, sweet and her allowed the sweet love and supposed pury. The eye of nonimpotence, Love's faithful friend, looked approxingly down on their escisatic bilss, and through nature bade them drink the sweet nectar from the golden cup, of the union of two loving hearts. Yet through the power of her imperurable stoleism, they saw the death pallor mantle Love's fair face as he fell a mortal victim, and saw his life blood gush from this cruel wound innicted with the deadly lance, held in Dury's strong, unerting hand. That which was so full of life, courage and hope a moment ago, now lies witnering, blighting, decaying, dying.

Years have passed since that fatal duel; many seasons have come and gone. Time has changed the once rich brown hair to thin skeins of silver gray; the warm, pink, bealthy complexion to a seared and wrinkled brown; the quick elastic step to an unsteady, tottering tread. For some distance down the river the railroad follows its meanderings, and at one point there is a succession of sharp curves. In passing around one of these on a down grade the train broke in two. The engineer did not broke in two. The engineer did not at once discover the danger, but as soon as he became aware of the fact that the detached section of the train was liable to run into the main portion he put on steam and pulled out, thinking to get around the bend and slack up and catch the rear end as it came along.
